Shorier Hours of Labor.

A valued friend sends us a plea in behalf of shorter hours of labor, drawn from what he saw in a recent trip to the country. His friend, whom he visited, rose at half-past four o'clock in order that he might breakfast in time for the train that brought him to the city. Our friend also tried the experiment for himself, and when he reached the train he found the cars nearly filled with those who were following the same rule. He asked a number of them why they lived so far from their places of business and they all made like answer: "In order that the wife and children—the latter especially—may have better air." He closes with the state-ment that "these men thus add two hours a Steam Plooring & Planing Mill day to their labor for the sake of their

it, or despises it, and would not put his hand

this world's economy.

All that tends to cheapen production adds to the comfort of the race. The labor-saving machines will in time give daily meat to a whole people who tasted such fare only as a dainty when everything was wrought by hand. But to shorten the hours of work is to increase the cost of production, and to deprive persons of moderate earnings of many things they would otherwise enjoy. world wants better work and more of it before the race will be fit for the millen-

YOUNG MEN OF VIRGINIA,

Do you desire to fit yourselves for a useful business career? If so, attend

Dunsmore's Business College.

This institution has been incorporated by the Legislature of the State of Virginia and endorsed by some of her best citizens. It not only teaches young and middle-aged men the theory of Business and Accounting, but each and every one is required to do actual business transactions, as they would have to do in every-day life. They are thoroughly trained in everything pertaining to business life.

STAUNTON, Va., July 30, 1884.

We take pleasure in recommending to the nublic "Dunsmore's Business College" of this city.

We have attended and taken part in several examinations of Mr. Dunsmore's pupils, and can testify to his thoroughness as a teacher, and to the uniform proficiency of his scholars. His pupils are now filling a number of important position.
